Coaching for Success

Who is it for?

Our practical 2-day coaching course is based on coaching as a fundamental part of staff development enabling individuals to learn, grow and reflect on their skills to share within the organisation.

This course will be ideal for anybody who manages people or relationships and anyone seeking to improve their knowledge and understanding of how to improve your own performance and the performance within a team.

Some example topics covered during the course are: the psychology of getting a 'Yes', coaching and creative thinking, stages to achieve your end goals and Ideal performance

What will you learn?

- Develop skills, behaviours and confidence for successful coaching
- How to understand the difference between coaching and mentoring, including the context and situations where coaching can be utilised
- Be able to use coaching as a personal and professional development tool
- Spend less time solving human process and behaviour issues
- Use coaching to become more proficient in your managerial role
- Gain confidence in your ability to effectively coach others
- Improve your interpersonal and problem solving skills

What impact will it have?

- Create an effective coaching culture across the organisation and associated teams
- Support staff development of skills and behaviours in order to retain your talent
- Better engagement through a high performing culture
- Improve performance and bridge performance gaps
- Address issues before they become larger problems
